Micah's Meditations

Winter. It can feel so gloomy. The days seem to end way too quickly, and the cold nights go on forever. The wind chills us to the bone. We might feel discouraged and let down now that the joyous Christmas season is over for another year. Some of us could very well be experiencing those winter blues. If that isn't bad enough, we are being ambushed with TV commercials telling us that it is time to lose weight as well as time to do our taxes. Oh, goody! Yes, the winter can be a tough season to get through, with all of those gray clouds looming over us.

But, my brothers and sisters, the winter leads to the growth and new birth of spring. During this season as we journey toward spring, let us plant seeds of faith and grow together, too. Let us build and grow and strengthen our relationship with God and with each other. We sow and water those seeds through praying, devotional readings, reading Scripture, attending Sunday school and worshipping together on Sundays, checking up on each other, caring for each other, and in many wonderful ways. When we spend this time with God and with each other, we feel wonderful light and grace. The days don't feel so gray and cloudy because of the brightness and care of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. In the spring, may we see large blossoms of growth and love. This spiritual fruit can be so meaningful to us. As we plant and water these seeds for wonderful growth in God, let us invite and welcome others around us to join us in attending Sunday school, being in worship, and in the many other great things that help brighten our winter days.

Grace & Peace,

Micah
